

Rochester FAASTeam presents:

Fulton EAA Safety Meeting

Manufacturer's aircraft component Service Bulletins are created in response to servicing issues that may affect airworthiness. Depending on circumstances, compliance with Service Bulletins may or may not be mandatory but they should always be considered to ensure continued airworthiness. Online access to Service Bulletins and Service Instructions is readily available to aircraft owners, pilots, and mechanics. In order to ensure the best product possible and to improve product design and maintenance, aircraft manufacturers constantly research the performance of their products. Product performance research, including accident investigation, may reveal unanticipated issues with aircraft components. As aircraft age new issues may be discovered that require action. Service Bulletins and Service Instructions are means to share issues with aircraft owners and maintainers and to guide them in issue resolution.

Directions: Oswego County Airport, County Route 176 (Whittaker Rd.) Fulton, New York. Go past the main airport entrance (heading north) to the EAA Chapter entrance. There will be a sign by the road. If flying in, you can park your aircraft on the EAA hangar ramp. Click here to view a map.
